Crowdfunding

Crowdfunding is a creative method to raise capital to support new ventures where an entity or individual seeks small contributions from a large number of people. Generally, there are reward-based, equity-based, equity-based and donation-based categories. In the past years, Congress passed the JOBS Act to protect investors engaging in crowdfunding transactions, such as investment limits, required disclosures by issuers, and a requirement to use regulated intermediaries required to register with FINRA and regulated by the SEC.

Company	Country	Category
Influences

Kickstarter	United States	Reward-based
Kickstarter is a global crowdfunding platform for projects such as tech, music, movie, art, games, photography, comics and design. The platform has helped more than 152,000 projects get funds with a strong community of repeat supporters.
LendingClub	United States	Debt-based
LendingClub was the first peer-to-peer lender to register its offerings as securities with the Securities and Exchange Commission in the U.S., and to offer loan trading on a secondary market. Over the last 10 years, the company have helped millions of people take control of their debt, grow their small businesses, and invest for the future.

Jumpstart Africa	United States	Reward-based
Jumpstart Africa seeks to help African Entrepreneurs access startup funds. It aims to link African entrepreneurs with good business ideas, to people that see how these ideas can succeed and revolutionize the way the rest of the world supports Africa by backing innovative projects developed by African entrepreneurs. It hopes in the long term to eventually add an equity component to its business and develop into an incubator with a co-working spaces in across Africa.
Indiegogo	United States	Donation-based
Indiegogo is one of the most popular donation-based crowdfunding sites. Indiegogo allows people to solicit funds for an idea, charity, or start-up business. It only supports donation-based projects and gives people opportunity to raise money via online donations or pre-purchasing of products or experience.
